

PRESIDENT TAFT NOTIFIED OF NOMINATION FOR PRESIDENT

OFFICIAL CEREMONY PERFORMED AT THE WHITE HOUSE THIS MORNING BY SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

ROOT MAKES ADDRESS

President Answers and Accepts the Trust Reposed Upon Him by the National Republican Convention.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 1.—Everything was ready at the White House early today for the ceremony of notifying President Taft that he is the candidate of the republican party to succeed himself. The East Room, scene of many of the historic events of the nation's history, was in its best dress with its old quartered oak floor polished anew.

Its tall wide windows open to the breeze from the Potomac and the finest products of the White House greenhouse everywhere around its walls. The president rose early and for the first time in many weeks had breakfast with Mrs. Taft and Charles, his younger son, who came down from Beverly for the notification.

Mr. Taft's plans for the day were not elaborate. Only a few intimate friends were expected at the executive offices in the short time he planned to stay there. The program arranged was to bring the official notification committee, headed by Sen. Root to the executive offices before noon, and the guests to the White House proper at the same time.

The march of the committee from the offices to the East Room, the notification speech of Senator Root and his own words of acceptance were the only formalities the president wished. Unofficially the word had gone out that the notification ceremonies were to be as informal as possible, and most of the congressmen invited were glad to lay aside frock coats and silk hats. The order had been given for the president's aids to appear in summer uniforms of white, but the marine band, which plays at all White House affairs, knows no uniform but coats of scarlet.

The custom begun by the Tafts of serving buffet luncheons made it an easy task to prepare for the comparatively small number asked to be present today. The state dining room was ready for the luncheon after the program of speech making and hand shaking.

Mrs. Taft, radiant and happy stood by her husband's side. Charles, their younger son, also was there. They had come from their summer cottage at Beverly yesterday. Miss Helen and Robert, the elder son were not present.

Senator Root's speech delivered in the tones so well known in the senate chamber was heard by all, and when he finished the president began reading his speech of acceptance, a printed document of some 10,000 words. The president read in his usual clear and deliberate manner and as he proceeded the guests remained standing.

A raised dais had been provided in the center of the East Room surmounted by two colonial chairs. Senator Root occupied one and the president the other.

As the president entered the room along the marine band played the Star Spangled Banner, and the guests heartily applauded. Mrs. Taft when she entered a moment later also was applauded. Charles D. Hilles, the president's former secretary and now chairman of the republican national committee, came in just before Senator Root began to speak and he too received a round of applause.

"Your title to the nomination is as clear and unimpeachable as the title of any candidate since political conventions began."

That was the keynote of Senator Elihu Root's address to President Taft here today when, as chairman of the committee of notification, he formally advised the president of his nomination by the Chicago convention.

Surrounded by the members of the committee and a hundred or so invited guests, the chairman of the convention in a brief speech delivered the official announcement.

"The Committee of Notification," said Senator Root, "here present, has the honor to advise you formally that on the 22nd day of June, last, you were regularly and duly nominated by the national convention of the republican party, to be the republican candidate for president for the term beginning March 4th, 1913.

"For the second time in the history of the republican party a part of the delegates have refused to be bound by the action of the convention. Now as on the former occasion, the irreconcilable minority declares its intention to support either your democratic opponent, or a third candidate. The reason assigned for this course is dissatisfaction with the decision of certain contests in the making up of the temporary roll of the convention. Those contests were decided by the tribunal upon the law that has governed the republican party for more than forty years imposed the duty of deciding such contests.

"So long as those decisions were made honestly and in good faith all persons were bound to accept them as conclusive in the making up of the temporary roll of the convention, and neither in the facts and arguments produced before the National Committee, the committee on credentials and the convention itself, nor otherwise, does there appear just ground for impeaching the honesty and good faith of the committee's decisions. Both the making up of the temporary roll, and the rights accorded to the persons upon that roll, whose seats were contested, were in accordance with the long established and unquestioned rules of law governing the party and founded upon justice and common-sense. Your title to the nomination is as clear and unimpeachable as the title of any candidate of any party since political conventions began.

"Your selection has a broader basis than a mere expression of choice between different party leaders representing the same ideas. You have been nominated because you stand pre-eminently for certain fixed and essential principles which the republican party maintains. You believe in the rule of law rather than the rule of men. You realize that the only safety for nations as for individuals, is to establish and abide by declared principles of action. You are in sympathy with the great practical rules of right conduct that the American people have set up for their own guidance and self-restraint in the limitations of the Constitution—the limitations upon governmental and official power essential to the preservation of liberty and justice. You know that to sweep away those wise rules of self-restraint would not be progress but decadence. You know that the great declarations of principle in our Constitution cannot be made a mere factual guide to conduct in any other way than by judicial judgment upon attempts to violate them; and you maintain the independence, dignity and authority of the courts of the United States. You are for progress along all the lines of national development, but for progress which still preserves the good we already have and holds fast to those essential elements of American institutions which have made our country prosperous and great and free. You represent the spirit of kindly consideration by every American citizen towards all his fellows, respect for the right of adverse opinion, peaceable methods of settling differences—the spirit and method which make ordered and peaceful self-government possible as distinguished from intolerance and hatred and violence.

"In respect of all these things our country is threatened from many sides. It is your high privilege to be the standard-bearer for the cause in which you believe, and that cause of peace and justice and liberty for millions of your countrymen who believe as you do will stand with you, and the great party which was born in the struggle for constitutional freedom will support you."

President Taft's formal speech of acceptance was then given.

Although Mr. Taft defined in detail the issues of the campaign as he saw them, he reserved the right to amplify his statement in a letter as the campaign develops.

The supreme issue that confronts the voters, the president declared, was that of the maintenance of the nation's institutions and the preservation of the Constitution, threatened he said, on the one hand by the Democratic party and on the other by those Republicans who had left the party to try their fortunes in a new one.

Next in importance Mr. Taft placed the tariff. In the proposals of the Democrats for reductions in the present schedules, he said, lay danger of business depression and hard times. The Republican principle of revision, only where scientific investigation shows it necessary, marked the straight road to continued prosperity and commercial peace.

In discussing the tariff, the President said that it was untrue that to its door could be traced the high cost of living and pointed out that conditions of living were alike over the world. A political promise could not remedy such a condition he said.

As an issue only less important than the tariff the President placed the regulation of trusts. He said the Sherman law had been enforced with success but added that specific acts of unfair trade should be denounced as misdemeanors that such acts might be avoided or when committed punished by summary procedure.

Interstate business enterprises, he said, should be offered a federal incorporation law.

Aside from those issued the President pointed to the record of the Republican party and particularly during his own administration as an earnest of what it might be expected to do in the future if the people returned it to powers in November. He attacked the Democrats at other points than the tariff, making special reference to the refusal of that party in the House of Representatives to continue the naval policy of two battleships a year. Taft did not mention either Colonel Roosevelt's name or Governor Woodrow Wilson by name but referred to each. While he did not accuse either of embracing the doctrines of socialism, many of the proposals they had made, the President said savored of it strongly. He closed with a review of his administrative achievements and appealed directly to the conservative voters of the Democratic party to join with the Republicans at the polls.

"I know that in this wide country there are many who call themselves Democrats, who view, with the same aversion that we Republicans do, the radical propositions of change in our form of government that are recklessly advanced to satisfy what is supposed to be popular clamor," said the President.

"They are men who revere the Constitution and the institutions of their Government with all the love and respect that we could possibly have, men who depreciate disturbance in business conditions, and are yearning for that quiet from demagogic agitation which is essential to the enjoyment of the whole people of the great prosperity which the good crops and the present conditions ought to bring us."

"To them I appeal, as to all Republicans, to join us in an earnest effort to avert the political and economic revolution and business paralysis

WHITMAN CONFIDENT OF SECURING FACTS

District Attorney Believes That Satisfactory Progress is Being Made in Unraveling Case.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 1.—Steps toward the corroboration of the confession implicating police Lieut. Becker in the murder of the gambler Herman Rosenthal, are to be taken carefully and slowly so that as District Attorney Whitman says the "Whole truth of the relation between gamblers and the police will come out."

Satisfactory progress is being made by Mr. Whitman in supplying the missing links in the confession of "Bald Jack" Rose, "Bridge" Webber and Harry Vallon who in their stories to the public prosecutor said that Becker instigated them in the killing of Rosenthal.

Mr. Whitman says he has obtained some important testimony confirming parts of Rose's and Webber's story that they met Lieut. Becker by appointment after the murder. Two restaurant employees, according to the district attorney, have given the information that they saw Becker talking with Rose and Webber on 42nd street after the killing.

Mr. Whitman who has been advised by several supreme court justices to go slow, said today:

"The court of appeals has held that their must be some corroboration of the testimony of accomplices. The establishment of a motive is corroborative. There is no doubt in my mind that the motive has been established."

The bomb was that it was placed in a tin can "Manny" Abrahams is a power in the West side ward and has been a democratic leader there for years. He told the police that while he might have a number of political enemies, he could think of no one who has so serious a grudge against him as to seek to harm him. He denied there had been gambling in the saloon.

While the charge was insufficient to demolish the building it rocked the walls and frightened several families on the upper floor. No one was in the saloon at the time of the explosion and the greatest damage was to the doors which were blown from their hinges.

TO DECIDE DISPUTE ON KANSAS PRIMARY

Supreme Court Justices Will Hasten Decision on Roosevelt-Taft Electoral Vote Tangle.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 1.—The Kansas primary election case which involves a unique plank of great importance in the machinery of the national election was laid before the justices of the United States Supreme Court here today.

Directly or indirectly the decision of these justices will settle whether eight candidates for presidential electors who have declared they will vote in the electoral college for Theodore Roosevelt may have their names on the ballots submitted to the people of Kansas at the republican primary election there on August 5. Emergency action by the court was necessary so that the primary ballot might be printed in time for the election.

The plaintiffs are the Kansas Taft leaders and the action which takes the form of application for a writ of error is defended by several attorneys representing the Roosevelt party including L. W. Kefauver and Rep. S. S. Jackson of Topeka. Rep. Olmstead of Pennsylvania appears for the applications.

The question of issue is a broad one. The Taft leaders declare that the eight electors they are trying to keep off the ticket were designated with the understanding that they would abide by the decision of the republican national convention, and that if the state primary elected them the result would be contrary to the 14th amendment of the federal constitution, which forbids any state to interfere with the freedom and privileges of citizens of the United States.

The Roosevelt people contend that the voters of Kansas should have the right of referendum from the decision of the national convention. The Kansas law is the only one which would permit such a referendum.

The Reds were accustomed to such work, having made a 360 mile experimental march from Dubuque, Iowa, to Camp McCoy under Colonel R. N. Getty. It is now announced that their work is bearing fruit, and that the proposed conference will probably be held in Washington or some other American capital in the near future. A meeting held in Washington last April, without attracting public attention selected the members of the first conference, who will give place to those hereafter elected by the various national associations.

SCOUTS PLAN HIKES IN PLACE OF CAMP

Will Make Several Short Trips Each Week Under Direction of Scoutmaster Jaeke.

Short hikes to places of interest near Janesville will take the place of the summer camp for the Boy Scouts during the month of August. This was the general plan decided upon at the last meeting of the scout council which gave Scoutmaster Jaeke entire charge of the work with liberty to arrange whatever plans he thought necessary.

Mr. Jaeke stated today that it was his intention to have several short hikes each week and the first of these will be to the town line bridge below Afton and return. The boys will meet at the Spanish War Veterans' hall tomorrow morning at seven-thirty bringing with them rations for four meals, dinner and supper Friday, and breakfast and dinner Saturday. The boys will pitch camp on the river bank below Afton.

The small tents have arrived and will be distributed among the boys to be used on these trips. With these there will be no necessity for any vehicle to transport baggage as whatever is needed can easily be carried by the Scouts.

The upriver camp was closed Tuesday morning after a successful three weeks. The attendance was fairly good throughout the entire time although the frequent rains of the past week were something of a hindrance. Mr. Jaeke has charge of baggage and camp equipment belonging to the boys and asks those who have not taken care of their belongings to call for them at his home on Pearl Street.

Scoutmaster Jaeke has established the Scout headquarters at the Spanish War Veterans' hall and will be there at nine o'clock each morning to meet the Scouts and their parents or anyone who cares to discuss the work with him. All the Scouts as far as possible will meet him there daily and announcement of plans for the day will be made.

A company of the Scouts visited the library yesterday and inspected the bird collection. Some time in the near future they will take an early hike into nearby woods for the purpose of observing the native birds.

Tentative plans are now being made for the trip to Palmyra which will be the last thing on the summer schedule, and will occupy possibly the last two weeks of August. About thirty boys who have the best records for attendance and faithfulness to Scout activities and obedience to Scout laws will be rewarded permission to enjoy this outing.

Hidden Message. Search for a message hidden by Scoutmaster Jaeke was begun this morning and two of the boys, Kenneth Wilson and Chas. Hines, had succeeded in finding it before noon today. The directions which were given were rather obscure and referred to a series of scout marks which marked the route leading to the message. Following are the directions given to the boys.

Starting at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets and figuring that each block is one hundred yards proceed 250 yards northwest to a large frame building; 125 yards due northwest of this building you will find the first mark; west by northwest find a mark on plank; cross river and look for mark on iron on the right side; there is a steam boiler 50 yards from this mark; southwest mark on building; 20 yards southwest mark on ground; 75 yards northwest mark on sidewalk; 100 yards northwest mark; 100 northwest mark; mark on sidewalk west by southwest; and mark on west 25 feet in the new direction; telephone post, 100 yards; 100 yards mark on tree; 100 yards due west, 25 yards northwest, two marks; 100 yards due west, mark on ground and look for post with letter box; look for mark telephone post 100 yards due west; 100 yards west of this two marks; 90 yards north by northwest mark on ground; 15 paces east look for box arrow; four paces south of this mark you will find message hidden. Take the message down on a piece of paper and report to Scoutmaster. Leave original message in the box and give your signed report to Scoutmaster.

Another message will be hidden this afternoon and directions will be left on the door at the Spanish war veterans hall in the morning.

FORETELLS WEATHER FOR COMING PERIOD

What to Expect in Climatic Changes in The Next Few Days

(Copyrighted 1912 by W. T. Foster.) Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Aug. 8 to 12, warm wave 7 to 11, cool wave 10 to 14. This will include the hottest, driest, most disagreeable weather, and the severest storms of August. The drouth will not be general but wherever it prevails the corn and cotton crops will be damaged, while in those parts not affected by the drouth the prospects for good fall maturing crops will be good. The cool wave will be very moderate and no frosts may be expected in the extreme northern agricultural sections.

I am expecting extremely hot weather from early in the month to about Aug. 13 and unusually cool weather following that. A great high temperature wave is expected Sept. 14 to 24 and moderate temperatures balance of month. Large parts of the corn and cotton sections were calculated to be short of moisture for July, August and September and this shortage of moisture has been expected to cut the corn and cotton crops short.

Next disturbance will reach the Pacific coast about August 13, cross Pacific slope by close of 14, great central valleys 15 to 17, eastern sections 18. Warm wave will cross Pacific valleys about Aug. 13, great central valleys 14 to 17, eastern sections 17. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Aug. 16, great central valleys 18, eastern sections 20. This will be a continuation of the great hot wave bringing showers in some sections and drouth in others. Following it a great high clearing and cool wave will overpread the northwest, causing a great fall in temperatures from near Aug. 10 to 19 and near the latter date frosts are expected in northern parts of the spring wheat country.

Recently I have traveled extensively over the middle west and have found vast improvements in the last ten years. That section will soon be the richest on earth. Their natural resources seems to be inexhaustible and soon they will be in complete control, financially and politically, of this vast country.

All great governments have found it necessary to provide for emigration to colonies and the Panama canal will soon open up inducements for our colored population to go to those vastly rich islands in the Mexican and Caribbean seas. Our government can well afford to secure to the heads of colored families good homesteads in Cuba, Hayti, Santo Domingo and other rich soiled islands to the south of us.

FREAR ON CAMPAIGN IN TENTH DISTRICT

Secretary of State in Address at Fountain City Outlines Features on Progressive Legislation.

Fountain City, Wis., Aug. 1.—Secretary of State James A. Frear spoke here last night on matters concerning the congressional campaign in the new Tenth district. From ten years' association with legislative proceedings, he stated that the state of Wisconsin ought to provide a limit for legislative sessions, giving many reasons therefor.

"While the progressive movement has done much for Wisconsin," he said, "it remains to those who believe in the rule of the people to refer back to the electorate of the state the right to limit the length of legislative sessions by constitutional provision. I believe the legislator who will aggressively champion such a measure will confer a boon upon the state. The rapidly growing expenses of legislative sessions is bringing adverse criticism which is chargeable equally to members of all parties, and if the legislature does not speedily remedy the evil, the sessions will be limited as soon as the people secure the power under the initiative and referendum."

"In 1911 the session reached 134 days, or more than a half year's duration, without any senatorial contest or other especial reason for this burden upon the members. Aside from 200 odd resolutions offered in both houses, the bills submitted during the session reached over 1,700 in number. Frequently bills would contain from ten to twenty or more pages, so that the 2,000 separate measures involved many thousands of pages. Substitutes and amendments were also offered, until the average legislator found in fact every member was confronted with a hopeless mass of bills that at the end of the session by actual measure reached seventeen inches in depth when placed in a pile. The number of pages in the Assembly Journal will also be easily remembered for it reached within seventeen pages of 1,700. Between $100,000 and $200,000, depending upon the method of calculation, was expended by the state for legislative expenses in 1911, aside from the salaries of the members."

Secretary Frear declared that he drew joint resolutions for the 1907, 1909, and 1911 legislatures proposing a referendum to limit the sessions by constitutional amendment. In every session it was voted down. He charged that Assemblyman Gilbertson moved its indefinite postponement and that Speaker Ingram left the chair to move immediate consideration of a motion to reconsider. In order to ensure its defeat. The resolution was defeated 51 to 47 and Secretary Frear declared the people are entitled to know why.

Thirty-two states and territories have a legal limit for legislative sessions. Mr. Frear believed that members of the Wisconsin legislature should be paid by the day for actual attendance with a limit to the number of days. The apportionment bill, which he called unfair and which Governor McGovern vetoed, and the resolution to change the compensation of members from $500 per session to $600 per year ($1,200 per session) were actively supported by Messrs. Gilbertson and Ingram, declared the secretary. The voters of the state had recently defeated a two-year salary amendment.

"What legislature," he asked, "would ever dare in its saner moments to pass the Blue Book bill enacted at the last session against the vigorous protest of the State Printing commission? This law, passed in the closing days of the session, provides that each member of the legislature shall have 200 Blue Books, a larger number than is given by any other state in the country, and reaching a total of 35,000 for the legislature alone, at an expense of over $20,000, to be issued by the members as a perquisite to be used in direct violation of the corrupt practices act. At the same time the legislature gives to the governor of the state only one Blue Book, with a similar number to every other state officer. The act is indefensible and speaks for itself, disclosing the method of prolonging objectionable bills to the close of a wearisome session."

TERRIBLY BEATEN BY FATHER OF HER LOVER, WILL SEEK BALM IN COURTS

Essie Carter.

Still suffering great pain from the wounds inflicted by the father of the man she loved, Essie Carter of Dawson, Ga., declares that she will sue her assailant for heavy damages, probably $25,000. The man who attacked her is W. S. Dozier, clerk of the Superior court in Dawson. Because she would not cease her attentions to Dozier's son, Vernon, the older Dozier, assisted by a half dozen men and a burly negro, one night recently took her from the house where she was staying and when the man had finished their work it was feared the woman could not live. The accompanying photograph of the injured woman was taken at Macon, Ga., where she is now being cared for.

Mayor Giles, of Walla Walla, Wash., who is the most enthusiastic baseball fan in his town, has figured out a means of eliminating rowdy players and umpire batters after attending a recent game in which the players, according to his own opinion, were not as nice as they should have been to the umpire, he ordered the chief of police to arrest any player who protested a decision, on the charge of disturbing the peace. The next day a keen eared policeman was stationed near the players' bench, and if there were any protests they were not loud enough to be heard. The mayor says there has been no lapse in the politeness of the players toward the umpire since.

The Public will have to worry along now for a while without seeing the classic champions in action. Wolgast, Kilbane, Gibbons and Coulton are resting and Jack Johnson seems to have nothing in view.

Columbus of the American Association has purchased outfielder Charles Hemphill from the Atlanta club. He was formerly with the New York Americans and resigned at Atlanta a few weeks ago as manager.

The Vicksburg club of the Cotton States league dropped an even $750 when they gave the Detroit Tigers an option on Fitcher Pat McGeehee. The Detroit option was for $750. Soon after the Cincinnati Reds offered just double that amount and then Detroit took the player. McGeehee figured quite prominently in a recent dispute in the Cotton States league. To help Vicksburg beat Yazoo City out in the first half of the season, Greenwood "sold" the pitcher to Vicksburg. When the first half ended, Greenwood wanted McGeehee back, but President Lewis of the league and Secretary Farrel ruled that he had to stay with Vicksburg.

Never before in the history of the Western league has the pennant race been so thrilling as this year. It is a neck and neck run between four clubs. Omaha and St. Joseph have been altering in the occupation of the lead. Sioux City and Denver remain only a few points below these topnotchers, and it looks as if Denver might soon be in first place.

Zimmerman, of Chicago, has the best batting average in the National league. It is .397. Meyers, of New York, has second place, with an average of .381.

Johnny Dundee has got restless again and will leave New York soon on a long jaunt. First he will drop down to New Orleans and meet a local boy there the middle of August. Then he will skip to Los Angeles, where he hopes to do battle with Kilbane on Labor Day.

It seems almost impossible to believe, but the Boston Americans have lost but four series out of twenty-five this season. Such a record has not been made more than once or twice before in the American league.

The New York American league club has sold Pitcher Thompson, a University of Georgia man who joined New York in June, to Brooklyn of the New England league.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

The elapsed time of the Dream, which started from Race Street Wharf, Philadelphia at 12:15 P. M. on Saturday was 104 hours, 20 minutes, 5 seconds.

The Dream had made a rough passage during the whole run of 714 nautical miles, and was compelled to leave on Monday for several hours. The crew arrived in an exhausted condition. They expect, however, after a short period of rest, to race back to Philadelphia. Up to 7:30 this morning nothing had been heard of the Katherma.

An Empress and Her Tea.

The late empress dowager of China
was a great epicure in regard to her tea. To add to the flavor she used a curious flour mixture, equal parts of dried jasmine and honeysuckle. The honey in the flowers sweetened the tea ever so slightly and the blooms gave it a pungent taste, which the empress liked. The first leaves of the great plantations in China are always reserved for the imperial use.

HOLD UP COMPANION AT ST. PAUL DEPOT

JOHN SHEARERS ATTACKED AND ROBBED IN BROAD DAY.
LIGHT LATE YESTER-DAY.

CAPTURE ASSAILANTS

Held For Examination—One May be Harry Rosenberg Wanted
For Murder of Herman Rosenthal.

Charged with a brutal assault upon their companion, John Shearers, at the St. Paul passenger station early last evening, and with robbing him of ten dollars, Harry Mandel of New York, John Kennedy of Sharon, Wyoming, and Joe McGee of New Jersey are imprisoned at the county jail, awaiting an examination in the municipal court tomorrow. One of them,
Harry Mandel, is thought to be Louis Rosenberg, one of the alleged murderers of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler, his description closely approximating that in the possession of the police.

The attack was made shortly before five o'clock last evening, following a quarrel among the four men
just outside the ladies' waiting room.
Kennedy, McGee, and Mandel falling upon Shearers, knocking him down
and kicking and beating him unmercifully.
Women in the waiting room saw the attack and their cries attracted railway employees and others who started in pursuit of Shearers's assailants. These trouble-makers, after walking leisurely down the tracks, slipped behind some freight cars north of the Field coal elevator and ran down Jackson street.
The police station had been notified
by telephone from the depot as quickly as possible, and by the time the thugs turned down Wall street toward the river, Chief of Police Appley and Patrolman Champion joined the chase.

After arriving at the intersection of River and Wall streets the three men separated, Mandel running towards the power house, and Kennedy
into the alley to the rear of Diehl's art store. One was cornered by patrolman Doran in the basement of the Smith Drug store, and the other, McGee, in the basement of the Burns
dry goods store by Officer Champion.
Chief Appley placed Mandel under arrest near the power house as he was starting toward town, attempting to deceive the police as to his identity. All three men were taken to the police station and locked up pending
an investigation.

John Shearers, the injured man was taken to the hospital, where
Dr. Pember, after making an examination found he was not so badly injured as was supposed. His injuries consisted of a cut about the upper lip,
and severe bruises, as he had received several kicks in the stomach. The men who attacked him have hardly been locked in their cells before a telephone message came to the police station that Shearers had escaped.

Chief of Police Appley at once hurried out in the automobile of Dr. Pen-ber, and found that Shearers had been captured by George Milligan, a hospital employee. When he suddenly jumped out of the bed in which he was placed, he overturned a screen, attracting the attention of the superintendent. Shearers was taken to the police station and locked up, and is held in custody, not being able to furnish a witness's bond of $200 which the court demanded.

Another chapter was added to the story last evening when two men came to the station at about ten o'clock and asked for McGee and his companions who were arrested during the afternoon. They gave evasive replies to the question of Patrolman Brown, who was on watch there, and he decided to hold them. They made an attempt to bolt when they learned the officer's intention but were locked up after giving some vigorous resistance. This morning they claimed that the men locked up were not, but ones they were looking for and that they did not know them.

Shearers said to have been with the three men who assaulted him ever since he had met them at a saloon in the morning. He had started out with $15 in bills which represented his earnings in a steel mill fifty-four miles from St. Paul. He changed a $5 bill and spent about $2 for drinks
for the other men, and a bottle of alcohol. Not a cent of money was found on the men when searched and it is thought they threw it away to protect themselves. They are held in default of $800 bail.

That James Hansberry and John Williams, the two men who were arrested when they visited the police station last night, were members of the same gang as the three men held for the attack on Shearers was determined this morning, when a railway official identified them. He declared he has seen all five together,
and that they with six more, were carried from a train at the South Janesville yards at 4:15 o'clock yesterday. The two were asked to furnish bonds of $200, each for their appearance as witnesses, and in default were sent to jail. The belief is entertained that all of the men are pickpockets and gamblers, and that the assault was made on Shearers because he refused to divide his money
with them.

George Hatch was an immediate witness of the attack and pointed out to John Dalton, special policeman, the direction they went. Dalton at once arrested whom he thought was one of the thugs, only to find he had the wrong man. His tip however,
served to put the police on the right track. Mrs. Block, who lives near the station, also saw the attack. A little girl who was there said she saw the men strike Shearers after he had been knocked down unconscious.

WAS WITH MILITIA IN SHAM WARFARE

W. L. Matteson of This City With Illinois Regiment in Mimic
Campaign Near Sparta
And Tomah.

Marches through sand and over rocky and hilly country, with camps
on the sand or wet marshy ground, make mimic warfare anything but play, according to W. L. Matteson of this city, who was with the troops in the sham campaign about Tomah and Sparta, which ended yesterday with the surrender of the army of the Reds.
Mr. Matteson was with the Third Illi-ois Regiment, which with the Second and Third Wisconsin Infantry Regiments, a squadron of the Fifteenth U.
S. Cavalry and Battery A of Milwaukee, formed the army of the Blues.

Mr. Matteson joined his regiment at Beloit. It was then supposed that the troops would go to Camp McCoy
in the government reservation near Sparta, but at Camp Douglas they were ordered to detain, and there joined the regulars and the Milwaukee battery on July 23. That night the row between the militia and the regulars occurred, some of the soldiers getting into a fist fight.

Reports of the affair, however, Mr.
Matteson says, were exaggerated, as there was no drunken orgy on the street, and the fighting was soon stopped by arresting the participants in the affair.

The next morning the army of the Blues moved on to Oakdale and lamped there in the deep sand. Cav-ery scouts were sent out ahead, and the next morning early the camp was again moved, and about noon, as the army of the Reds lost complete track of the movements of their opponents.

Friday night there was skirmishing
between the two armies, but no
regular engagement until Sunday Saturday and Sunday both armies lay in the vicinity of Tomah, and on Sunday
the cavalry forces of the Reds and the Blues met unexpectedly on the Main street about noon and fought a pitched battle to the amazement and fright of the inhabitants of Tomah.

The big sham battle occurred yesterday, resulting in a victory for the Blues, who were under command of Col. Orlando Holway of La Crosse.
At two o'clock yesterday afternoon
the "recall" was sounded by the Reds
under command of Brigadier General Adolph Hoyt, of St. Paul, signifying that they were defeated.

The fighting lasted from noon until two o'clock, with heavy skirmishing infantry fire and cannonading by the artillery. After the battle the troops were ordered to the government fire range, Camp Webb, and the Illinois regiment left last night for their ar-sena.

DELAVAN LAKE SUMMER RESIDENTS PLAN DOG SHOW.

The dog show of the Delavan Lake
Kennel Club, which is to be held on Saturday, August 17th promises to be the finest thing of its kind ever held in the West. The club was formed by a number of local lovers of good dogs, with the idea of holding, as they
to at Atlantic City, Long Branch, Newport, and many other places in the East, a one-day, open-air dog show where the show will start in the morning, shortly before noon and be all over by eight, so that the exhibitors can take their dogs home with them in the evening. This is the first one-day show of this kind ever held in the West, and will be a most pleasing innovation to the longer
four-day affairs held during the winter.
The show should be of special interest to the owners of good dogs,
in the southern part of this state, and a large entry of nearby residents is desired and is already assured. No pedigree is necessary to show a dog,
only that he is of some known breed,
and as there are over 700 classes provided covering over 60 different breeds, it will be seen that nearly every known breed of dog will be represented, and the local lovers of dogs will have a chance to pit their dogs against each other and those from a distance, all being judged by some of the best known judges in the country. Arrangements have been made to have ten judging rings going at once, and as it will be held on the lawn of the Log Cabin at Delavan Lake, the lovers of a good dog are insured a most enjoyable time. Any who wish to make entries are requested to send in the names to the Chicago office of the Club superintendent,
when they will receive a Preliminary List, with full instructions as to entering their dogs. Entries close on August 6th. The Superintendent is A.
W. Gates, 1699 Fullerton avenue, Chicago.

CHICKEN FANCIERS ARE INTERESTED IN STATE FAIR

Special Inducements to Exhibitors to Show in Milwaukee This Year Are Offered.

The display of fancy fowls and pet stock will be an important feature at the state fair this year. This show will be conducted as a special division of the poultry department of which
Mrs. Adda F. Howie is superintendent.
Mrs. Howie and the officials of the board of agriculture are putting forth special efforts this year in the interest of this unique display. More than usual space will be allotted and the exhibits will be arranged according to a plan that will permit especial
attractiveness to people of all classes.
Beautiful birds and animals, displaying all rare colors in rare combinations, will vie with beautiful decorations. Prizes are offered in a large variety of classes. Included are Belgian, Flemish Giant and Himalayan hares, varieties of Guinea pigs,
and the numerous kinds of common,
ornamental and homer pigeons. Opportunity will be given also to exhibit
rare animals and birds kept as pets.
The interest already shown in this department demonstrates that both city and country people in all parts of the state will appreciate this exhibition, and that the number of exhibits will be much larger than for any preceding fair in this state, and will set a new standard for pet stock
exhibitions in the middle west.

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

EVANSVILLE SUFFRAGE SOCIETY HELD A FINE MEETING ON TUESDAY.

Prof. and Mrs. De Core of Eugene, Oregon, Gave Interesting Talks—Other News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Aug. 1.—The tea given by the Political Equality League Tuesday afternoon on the lawn at the T. C. Richardson home was largely attended and was a very successful and interesting meeting. The votes for women banners were conspicuously displayed and the votes for women were distributed among the members, who now number sixty.

Professor and Mrs. De Core of Eugene, Oregon, were present at the tea and Mr. De Core favored the meeting with an interesting talk on his observations of the suffrage movement in the western coast states and also expressed his personal views on the subject. While he greatly favors votes for women, he does not think that equal suffrage will work the complete moral revolution that many of the more rapid agitators would have us believe.

Mrs. De Core spoke on the equal suffrage movement in Oregon, where they greatly hope to secure votes for women at the coming election. The league as well as many other Evansville people are looking forward to the play and Miss La Follette's speech which comes off tonight, with great interest.

Local News.

Mrs. C. D. Barnard had the misfortune to fall down the back stairs of their home over the Economy store Wednesday afternoon and as a consequence has been in bed since. While her bones were broken she sustained some very painful bruises. Mr. and Mrs. Barnard had just returned from the lake, where they had been camping for a few weeks, and Mrs. Barnard was sweeping the stairs when she fell. As she has no remembrance of how the accident occurred, her friends think that it was doubtless due to vertigo to which she is subject at times.

Chas. Johnson left Saturday for Milwaukee, where he joined his father and together they left Milwaukee Monday for New York City, to visit relatives.

R. W. Hanson has bought George Wiggins' tailoring business and moved into the basement of the Shively building.

Mrs. Kitty Davis and Delbert Franklin of Moeville, Iowa, are visiting at F. A. Franklin's and other relatives in Evansville and vicinity.

Lillian Spencer gave a picnic at the stone quarry Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Hagadorn of Beloit.

There will be a band concert in the city hall park Friday night.

Mrs. E. M. Fairbanks and daughter, have returned from their visit at Ridgeway.

which Republican defeat will bring about. Such misfortune will fall most heavily on the wage earner. May we not hope that he will see what his real interest is, will understand the shallowness of attacks upon existing institutions and deceitful promises of undefined benefit by undefined changes.

The President had heard officially of his nomination at Chicago from the lips of Senator Elihu Root of New York, chairman of the notification committee.

"I accept it," he began, "as an approval of what I have done under its mandate and as an expression of confidence that in a second administration I will serve the public well. The issues presented to the convention over which your chairman presided with such a just and even hand, made a crisis in the party's life. A faction sought to force the party to violate a valuable and time-honored national tradition by entrusting the power of the presidency for more than two terms to one man, and that man, one whose recently avowed political views would have committed the party to radical proposals involving dangerous changes in our present constitutional form of representative government and our independent judiciary. This occasion is appropriate for the expression of profound gratitude at the victory for the right won at Chicago. By that victory the Republican party was saved for future usefulness."

After reviewing the legislative enactments of the Republican party the President launched into a bitter attack upon those responsible for the popular unrest of the present day.

"Started by sensational journalism and unjust and unprincipled muck-raking," he said, "demagogues have seized the opportunity to inflame the public mind that they might turn peculiar conditions to their own advantage." In the formation of new parties the President said, these men have promised the satisfaction of unrest by the application of a panacea.

"In the ultimate analysis, I fear the equal opportunity which these seek who proclaim the so-called social justice, involves a forced division of property, and that means socialism. I venture to say there is no national administration in which more real steps of progress have been taken than in the present one. But as for the millennium, a condition in which the rich are to be made reasonably poor and the poor reasonably rich by law, we are chasing a phantom; we are holding out to those whose unrest we fear, a prospect and a dream, a vision of the impossible.

"I do not say that the two gentlemen who now lead, one the Democratic party and the other the former Republicans who have left their party, in their attacks upon existing conditions, and in their attempts to satisfy the popular unrest by promises of remedies, are consciously embracing socialism. The truth is that they do not offer any definite legislation or policy by which the happy conditions they promise are to be brought about, but if their promises mean anything, they lead directly toward the appropriation of what belongs to one man, to another.

"The truth is, my friends, both those men have left the Republican party under the inspiration of their present leader, and our old opponents, the Democrats, under their candidate, are going in a direction they do not definitely know, toward an end they can not definitely describe, with but one chief and clear object and that is of acquiring power for their party by popular support through the promise of a change for the better.

"These gentlemen propose to reform the Government, whose present defects, if any, are due to the failure of the people to devote as much time as is necessary to their political duties, by requiring a political activity by the people three times that which thus far the people have been willing to assume.

"But after we have changed all the governmental machinery so as to permit instantaneous expression of the people in constitutional amendments, in statutes and in recall of public agents, what then?

"Votes are not bread, constitutional amendments are not work, referendum do not pay rent or furnish houses, recalls do not furnish clothing, initiatives do not supply employment to relieve inequality of condition or of opportunity. We still ought to have set before us the definite plans to bring on complete equality of opportunity and to abolish hardship and evil for humanity. We listen for them in vain."

The President discussed at some length the recall of judges and judicial decisions and the proposals to forbid the use of injunctions to protect property against a secondary boycott and the use of juries in contempt proceedings brought to enforce decrees or orders. The recall of decisions he labelled the "grotesque proposition by the leader of former Republicans who have left their party."

"The Republican party" concluded the President "stands for none of these innovations. It refuses to make changes, simply for the purpose of making a change, and cultivating popular hope that in the change something beneficial, undefined, will take place. We favor the greatest good to the greatest number. We believe that we have made progress from the beginning to now and that the progress is to continue into the far future; that it is reasonable progress that experience has shown to be really useful and helpful, and from which there is no reaction to something worse. It is said that this is not an issue in the campaign. It seems to me it is the supreme issue."

Picture machine operators perched upon points of vantage in the corners of the room clicked off thousands of feet of film while Senator Root and the president were speaking. It was the first time a moving picture had been taken in the White House.

As the president proceeded to speaking of the issues which he said confronted the republican party, at times he looked up from his manuscript as if departing from it, but he followed its text almost to the letter. When the president came to the portion wherein he referred to "the maintenance of the nation's institutions and the preservation of the constitution," he paused for a moment, thought he spoke with feeling. Then when he launched into a denunciation of those who he said, were responsible "for the popular unrest" to president spoke with spirit. Raising his voice and emphasizing his words by gestures.

While the president was being notified of his nomination the democrats in the house of representatives were firing volleys of campaign oratory against Woodrow Wilson, the democratic nominee.

Applause interrupted the president's delivery of his speech. One outburst lasting a little longer than the others greeted his reference to Col Roosevelt and Gov. Wilson though he mentioned neither by name. He referred to the colonel as the "leader of those who had left the republican party" and to Gov. Wilson as the democratic nominee.

At the conclusion of the speeches a luncheon was served and the White House took on the appearance of the mid-winter social functions though the formalities of dress were lacking.

SENSATION CREATOR TO VISIT AMERICA

Lady Constance Richardson.

Lady Constance Stewart Richardson, creator of sensations, is soon to visit America. This time she is to appear at Hammerstein's Victoria theater in New York, in a production of "Salome." Several years ago she started New York society by her daring dances. Later she created a sensation in Paris social circles by dancing barefooted at a music hall. Her most recent escapade was refusing to recognize Queen Mary and telling her majesty to move aside so as not to obstruct the view in the art exhibition.

Mrs. H. D. Clayton, wife of the Alabama representative, plans on leaving Washington soon. She is one of the more popular members of the younger congressional set.

Inexpensive Disinfectant.

An inexpensive disinfectant for a sick room can be made as follows: Put some ground coffee in a saucer and in the middle place a small piece of camphor gum. Light the gum with a match. As the gum allows the coffee to burn with it the smell is most refreshing and healthful.

An Appreciation.

An old sea captain, Earl Cardogan, tells a little story. The old fellow was turning over the leaves of a friend's album when, coming to the photograph of a young lady whose acquaintance the family was rather proud, he was asked what he thought of her. "Aweel," was the old sea rover's reply, "if I were goin' to make a rare stroke o' business, I'd buy that girl for what she was worth an' sell her for what she thinks she is worth!"—Ideas.

But One Official War Cry.

In the very early days the French had their "Cri de guerre," the Scotch their slogan, and the English their war cries, but so many cries were launched by the different great British lords that in 1495 parliament passed a special law forbidding these cries, on the ground that they produced disorder, allowing but one battle cry, "St. George and the King."

MANAGER OF WOODROW WILSON'S CAMPAIGN NEW IN POLITICS BUT MANY OF HIS ADVISERS ARE OLD HANDS AT THE GAME

New York.—The rapid rise of William F. McCombs, the smooth-faced, youthful attorney who successfully managed Woodrow Wilson's pre-convention campaign and now holds down the important job of chairman of the Democratic national campaign committee, is one of the wonders of modern politics.

Who is this man McCombs? He is a young looking man, prepossessing in appearance, clean cut, thin lips with a strong jaw and eyes of steel blue. The first impression conveyed on meeting him is that he is rather frail in physique. He is a trifle lame and walks with a slight limp.

Mr. McCombs is only thirty-six years old, having been born in the little town of Hamburg, Ashley county, Arkansas, on December 6, 1875. He received his early education in a small, ungraded country school and later prepared for Princeton and the locomotive cheer at the famous Webb school in Tennessee. He was graduated from Princeton in 1898, receiving his degree "cum laude," and promptly entered the Harvard Law School, where he completed his professional studies in 1901 and was admitted to the New York bar.

With little money and no influence he came to this city and began his career as a lawyer by accepting a clerkship in the office of a big law firm. Shortly afterward a coterie of New York bankers consulted the firm by which Mr. McCombs was employed up on a proposition which involved the investment of $20,000,000 in certain railroad securities. The legal aspects of the case were turned over to McCombs, who handled the work so well that his ability attracted the attention of certain interested magnates and he was offered inducements to accept other work of the same nature. This led the youthful lawyer to open an office for himself at 86 Broadway, where he has been remarkably successful and has built up a large and lucrative practice.

Mr. McCombs' sole political experience was when he became a candidate in 1904 for Assembly in the Twenty-fifth district, a Republican stronghold. Although he was defeated, the young lawyer waged an aggressive campaign and forged ahead of his party ticket.

It will thus be seen that Mr. McCombs comes to his present position equipped with little actual experience in the political game. He is a tireless worker; he possesses unusual ability to judge men and he has great tact. These are the qualifications which fit him for the present position.

But if Mr. McCombs is without practical experience in politics, his advisers on the campaign committee are mostly old hands at the game. Senator Reed is a man who has been mixed up in Missouri politics for years; as much might be said of Senator Gore of Oklahoma and Senator O'Gorman of New York. Representative McGillicuddy of Maine is another experienced politician. Joseph Dunliss of North Carolina and A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania are two other members of the committee who have had wide political experience.

EXCITEMENT STILL HIGH IN GEORGIA OVER HORSEWHIPPING OF ESSIE CARTER

W. S. Dozier and Clyde Dozier.

Excitement continues to run high in Dawson, Ga., where recently W. S. Dozier, superior court clerk of Terrell county, accompanied by his son Clyde, a negro and two or three other men, took the defenseless Essie Carter from her bed at midnight and horsewhipped her almost into insensibility, because she refused to repulse the attentions of a son of the elder Dozier. The girl is still suffering from the attack, and it is feared that blood poisoning may set in. She threatens to sue Dozier for $25,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, acknowledged social leader of New York's "400," has set Newport agog by declaring that she and her husband are tired of the summer "social whirl," and will leave the famous resort on August 17.

"Mr. Fish and myself are not fascinated with Newport any more," she recently declared. "We may go to Europe. You see, it is this way with us. There are the same old luncheons, the same old dinners and the same old dances."

Mrs. Fish has spent every summer at Newport for years. This is the first time she has grown weary of it.

HELD AS ONE OF ROSENTHAL'S SLAYERS

"Jack Sullivan"

"Jack Sullivan," king of New York newsboys, is held as one of the slayers of Herman Rosenthal. It was Sullivan who passed the greater part of the night of the murder riding about New York in an automobile with Lieut. Becker, the police official, who is alleged to have been the recipient of the gambling graft. Sullivan's arrest followed his identification as one of the murder gang by Louis Kruse, a waiter at the Hotel Metropole.

First Said by Jim Fisk.

The once current phrase, "Gone with the wind," (a more esthetic form of "up the spout") is credited to James Fisk, Jr., friend of Jay Gould and fellow despoiler of the Erie railroad. Truly the colloquialisms of to-day are not always as brand new as they seem and their origins are often picturesque if not interesting.

Why Is a Wilderness?

BILL SMILES

I took a trip to Beverly—
"Twas just the other day,
And found Bill Taft most cleverly
Upon the links at play.
"Forgive me for intruding;
Your pardon, Bill, I crave,"
Said I, "but I've been brooding
O'er a matter very grave
For some three weeks; I'm hearing
You've said it is no use.
Pray tell me, are you fearing
The Donkey or the Moose?"
Thereat Bill chuckled gaily.

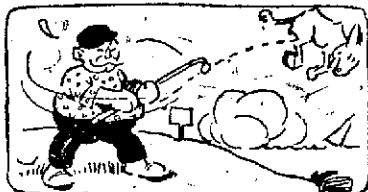

"Young man, pray brood no more;
In strength I'm gaining daily.
Dost hear that far-off roar?
It is the Bull Moose grieving.
Down there at Oyster Bay
That all its friends are leaving
To join me in the fray.
Poor Moose! its deathknell's ringing.
Its life 'd cannot save.
Sweet flowers he'll soon be bringing

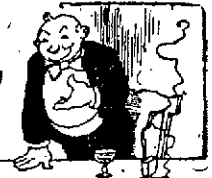

To strew upon its grave.

"The Donkey, loudly braying,
No terrors has for me.
Some day, with golf-stick playing,
I'll heave him out to sea.
What will avail his cunning
As he struggles in the brine?
He won't be in the running
Young man, the race is mine!"
Thus saying, Bill Taft, smiling,
A farewell bade me then,
And said he'd be beguiling
The hours with golf again.

This was about the fifteenth time that the prisoner had been accused and brought to trial for theft. Unfortunately on this occasion the lawyer who was to defend him was ill.

"You honor," said the prisoner to the judge, "I should like to have an adjournment. My lawyer is not well."

"But," replied the judge, "you were caught with your hand in the gentleman's pocket. What can your counsel say in your defense?"
"Exactly, your honor; that is what I am curious to know!"

For four entire hours had the lady remained in the store. She had visited the majority of the salesmen without spending a cent.

Toward the close of the afternoon
one of the counter hands, feeling somewhat exasperated, ventured to make a mild protest.

"Madame," he asked sweetly, "are you shopping here?"

The lady looked surprised, but not by any means annoyed.

"Certainly," she replied. "But what should I be doing?"

For a moment the salesman hesi-tated, then he blurted out:

"Well, madame I thought perhaps you might be taking inventory!"

Then the lady melted away among the shadows of the door.

There are drawbacks even to being the wife of a wealthy man, as Mrs.
Millions found out.

Although they have been married
a few weeks she hardly ever has a quiet hour with her husband. It's business from morning till night, and in the evening he only begs for peace and rest.

So the other day she came down to dinner in a sallow black frock.

"Why on earth, dear, are you wearing that frock?" asked Mr. Millions, eyeing her gown with distaste.

"Why it's almost half-mourning."

"Of course it's half-mourning," replied the lady with much mourning.

"Don't you always say when you come home from the office that you are half dead?"

The farmer was escorting the newly arrived boarder, a young city lady,
when all at once she espied a small herd of calves in a field near by.

"Oh, she cried, 'look at the little coviets!'

Grimacing, the farmer replied:

"No, miss; them's bullets!"
James Whitcomb Riley told a story of an old fellow who asked for work at the Riley farm in the poet's boy-hood. He was set at hoeing potatoes, but did not prove to be especially industrious. When taken to task for his lack of application he only replied, "Waal, the good book says,
'Do all things in moderation.'"

"Well, it came on dinner time at last," says the humorist, "and the old codger did his share nobly. In fact, he ate enough to kill two or three ordinary men. Some one gently hinted that the text didn't seem to apply. He opened a worn little Bible and imperturbably pointed to a passage. It read, 'Whatsoever they hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might.'"

Senator Dixon of Montana says that he saved a soldier a walk to Fort Myer the other night and, incidentally, learned a new lesson in economy. "Very evidently the soldier had been celebrating pay day for he was good-naturedly intoxicated as well as 'broke.' Not having his fare

the conductor called for it, I granted his request for the accommodating nickel. Then I asked him what he had done with his $16.50. He answered frankly enough: "Ten dollars went for a champagne supper with the boys—and I bought drinks for five.
I asked him what he had done with the other $1.50. After a moment's thought he hesitatingly answered,
'Well, I guess I just spent it foolishly.'"

Before he was well known, Wendell Phillips, the distinguished abolitionist, went to Charleston and, put up at a hotel. He had breakfast served in his room, and was waited upon by a slave. Mr. Phillips seized the opportunity to represent to the negro in a pathetic way that he regarded him as a man and brother,
and, more than that, that he himself was an abolitionist. The negro, however, seemed more anxious about his breakfast than he was about his position in the social scale or the condition of his soul, and finally Mr.
Phillips became discouraged and told him to go away, saying that he could not hear to be waited on by a slave.
"You must 'scuse me, massa," said
the negro; "I is 'bliged to stay here
'cause I'm 'sponsible for de silverware."

At The Theatre

"A VILLAGE VAGABOND"
Next Sunday matinee and night, will mark the second appearance of the ever popular Mori De Voss Company at the Myers Theatre this season. The Company left an excellent reputation behind them in their former visit here. "A Village Vagabond" will be the play for this engagement. Mr. Rounour the Manager, assures one of the very latest comedy dramas now being offered and which will be staged with all special scenery and effects. The Company numbers fourteen people to gather with extra Vandeville between acts. Unlike most comedy dramas "A Village Vagabond" is founded on true happenings.
The first act opens on a beautiful
"Villa" where the Vagabond makes home on the Hudson and at the end of which the "lead for life" occurs

for which all special mounting is carried. The third and last act is one long laugh. Prices for the engagement have been placed on a popular scale.

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS"
"The Shepherd of the Hills," which comes to the Myers theatre on Sunday, Aug. 25, matinee and evening is a dramatization of Harold Bell Wright's novel, the dramatization having been made by Mr. Wright and Elisbery W. Reynolds.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" is an intensely spellbinding story of love, mystery and heroic daring it gets a grip on life and brings peace to the soul of any man or woman who reads
it.

The woods and hills are part of God's handiwork. They will give peace and strength to all who seek them. From this play you may, in some measure, feel their influence and know some of the ways of divine providence.

You will ask of this story, "Are the characters in the play real people?
Does the old shepherd live only in the pages of the book or on the stage?
Is there a Sammy Lane and a Young Mari? You will say they are all very familiar, and you seem somehow to have known them a long time. The scenes may seem new and yet old, if you go to the Ozark Hills, you will find somewhere a sheep ranch in Mutton Hollow and a Dewey Bald. But it is from a log house above the mists that you will view these hills and forests and take of their peace and strength.

That inspiration of the old shepherd and his friends will come to you also as you follow the old trail that is nobody knows how old.

Everybody reads the want ads.

Youthful Genius.

At 21 Beethoven was famed as a musician, Alexander stood at the head of his army on the plains of Thessaly
and Tasso had begun his immortal poem of "Jerusalem Delivered." At 22 Paul Potter painted "The Young Bull," now in the museum at The Hague, said to be one of the finest animal pictures on canvas. At the same age Campbell wrote his "Pleasures of Hope," the work on which his fame as a poet rests.

Hairpin Industry a Large One.

One of the greatest of the world's manufactures of hairpins is at Painswick, England. There are no fewer than 300 persons employed in turning out these trilles of the boudoir, and hundreds of automatic machines are in constant operation transforming miles of wire into tons of finished pins.

Perfect Faith.

On being asked by his examining bishop to write out the Nicene creed
he wrote with a faith entirely too vast: "I believe in all things, visible and invisible."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ONE KIND OF BEGGING.

THE similarity of asking for money and asking for the use of time and talents which are worth money to their possessors, is something of which many people do not seem to be cognizant.

Mrs. L. is the fortunate possessor of a very sweet and well trained voice. Before her marriage she was trained in the use of this talent rather than in the household arts. Consequently she is glad that, although she is not a very economical household manager, she is able to help out her husband's rather slender income by singing. Although she is extremely busy in her home she finds time to hold a church position and has also put her name in an agency which occasionally brings her chances to sing at some entertainment. For this work she gets from five to ten dollars a night.

Now Mrs. L.'s friends, who know that the family finances are none too flourishing, would never think of asking her to give five or ten dollars to some pet project, and yet they are perpetually asking her to sing for them, gratis, on this or that occasion. And what else does that mean than asking her to give five or ten dollars worth of time and talent?

Why is it, I wonder, that artistic talents, that is, the ability to sing, or play some instrument, or read well, or entertain in any other way, are thus regarded by people's friends as public property? We would never think of asking the clever dressmaker to give several dollars worth of time toward making a gown to be sold at the Fair for the Benefit of the Somethings of Something. And yet Mrs. L. sang twice at that fair, and two other artists who are dependent for their bread and butter on their talents, were held up by friends to give their services.

"But," you say, "just think what a very few minutes it takes Mrs. L. and those others to sing or play. That isn't asking very much, is it?"

Ah, my friend, you forget something. Mrs. L. and the other artists did not give merely the ten or fifteen minutes of time and the modicum of effort which were represented by the actual performance. They gave also the hours of preparation required by even the most skillful performers to prepare an entertainment, and furthermore, they were giving a due share and proportion of the lifetime investment of effort and time and money which they had put into cultivating their talents.

To be sure, there are some artists who like nothing better than the opportunity to appear in public, who ask no other remuneration than a goodly need of flattery and the joy of being the "cynosure of neighboring eyes." I don't doubt that there are even some who would be glad to pay for this pleasure if that were allowable.

But that is another story. Mrs. L. does not belong to this class. Many of the artists who are continually hounded by thoughtless friends do not belong to it.

So be a little less glib in your assurances to the committee that you are sure you can get Mr. A. to read, or Mrs. B. to sing, or Miss C. to play the violin, at the entertainment. Perhaps you can hold them up at the pistol point of your importunity. But do you want to do it?

for a man to help his wife than it would be for him to let her become a worn-out drudge.

The right kind of a man wants his womanfolk to be healthy and happy. Your father has probably not thought about it that way and, perhaps, if you wish to show this to him, he will be only too glad to take steps to make your burden lighter. Perhaps he will have the laundry work sent out, or see that some strong woman comes to help you. If your brothers can't be induced to do it.

A little girl of 14 ought to have some good times, and surely she ought to have at least a good common school education. I hope you may go back to school when the next term opens.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My chum was engaged to a man and had a quarrel with him and broke the engagement. Because he is a friend of mine and I haven't turned him down she won't speak to me. She says I am trying to steal him away, but I can't. I like another man a great deal better. Do you think I ought to turn down this man because my chum did, when he is a friend of mine and always has been? I don't want to lose my chum, either.

BERTHA.

If the man is all right, I don't see why you should be unkind to him just because your chum doesn't like him. She is rather unreasonable. Possibly she would like to make up with him and is a little jealous of you.

I would not see any more of the young man than I could help. If I were you, do not encourage him to visit you, but be pleasant to him should you meet him. Nobody could find fault with such an attitude.

SOME NICE DESSERTS.

Angel Parfait.—Boil together a cup of sugar and a third of a cup of boiling water; pour over the well beaten whites of two eggs. When cold fold in a pint of double cream, whipped. Pack in half-pound baking powder cans and place in equal parts of ice and salt to mold. Let stand four hours. Then unmold and serve with fresh raspberries. This amount serves eight.

Dainty Dessert.—When one has plenty of cream there are endless varieties of most delicious dishes which may be prepared on short notice. Chop a half cup of blanched almonds, cut in quarters a cup of marshmallows; add sugar to taste and stir into a pint of whipped cream. Put a spoonful of this on slices of chilled pineapple. The pineapple may be shredded and the mixture served in a sherbet cup, tasting full as well.

Pastry shells baked in patty tins, and when cold filled with sliced peaches, well sugared, and whipped cream added is a variation from the ordinary peaches and cream.

Line a sherbet cup with strips of sponge cake, fill with chocolate ice cream, arrange a tablespoonful of whipped cream on the top of each, sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts and decorate with a candied cherry. This is called Chocolate Trifle, but is no trifling dessert.

A delicious lemon strawberry frappe is prepared by crushing a pint of ripe berries and then pass them through a sieve; add a sirup of a cup of sugar and a third of a cup of water boiled together, a half cup of lemon juice. Mix well and pack in a mold. Let stand four hours in ice and salt.

A simple and inexpensive dessert, when nothing else seems available, is cornstarch pudding. Prepare the milk and boil the starch, a tablespoonful or two to a pint of milk, sugar to taste, and if chocolate or cocoa is liked, a few tablespoonfuls of that with a bit of vanilla. Be sure to cook it long enough to cook the starch well. Serve with cream and sugar.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

"NOURISHING DIET" BLAMED FOR CONSTIPATION.

Dr. Boas, a well known European authority on disorders of digestion, says: "Constipation owes its origin, no doubt, to a perverted or insufficient diet. It is especially observable among the higher classes, where there exists a very obstinate preference for what is called a 'nourishing diet' (meat and fish) or in general, for very easily digested food." While lack of exercise that maintains the muscular tone upon which digestion and elimination largely depend, irregularity in meals and lack of regularity in habits, and bad mental conditions, are causes of constipation, lack of sufficient bulk or of coarse matter in the food is a common cause. There is no better corrective than dry Graham bread and figs.

What Have You Learned From Your Defeat?

May Sutton of tennis fame recently announced her one big rule of success in the sport.

"Learn something from every defeat."

There is some cause for every defeat we meet. It may possibly be something we couldn't help. Much more probably we could have helped it. Very probably the fault was ours and was a fault that we would have to acknowledge—to ourselves—if we only took a good look at the battle that we have just passed through, and gave ourselves an honest opinion of it.

Have you lost a job? Why did you lose it? Because the man or woman over you was prejudiced? Well, possibly that's true. But don't tell yourself that until you have investigated pretty carefully. Or else you won't be learning anything from that defeat.

Wasn't it something you yourself did or didn't do. Try honestly with yourself to decide what it was—and then the defeat will be valuable because it will have taught you something.

Have you just estranged a friend? What caused that loss? Are you certain there was not some fault in you? You know if we once have a friend there must be some reason why we lose him. There must be something lacking in us to hold him or something in us which wears upon him. Of course, once in a great while it might happen that outside influences were to be blamed. But that rarely happens without any contributing fault. At any rate, don't be too quick to accept that explanation. Don't soothe your feelings with the thought, "I was not to blame in any way," until you have reason to be sure you are right—until you have thought about it very, very thoroughly.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Wooley

Has the companion who started with you on the road to success prospered far beyond your power? Why is it? Why did the big grind of business of professional life overcome you while he rode on triumphant?

Has the one you loved above all others left you, attracted perhaps by a newer love? This is probably the hardest of all defeats to face and to question, and even to acknowledge. But if you really want to learn and be better able to grapple with life, you must do things that hurt, you know.

Why did he forget his love for you? What happened to it?

Isn't it true that you must have failed in some way? I am not saying for one minute that you should have acted differently to have avoided these defeats. It may be that you could not have kept your position, nor your friend nor your lover, without compromising your own sincerity and honesty. It may be the noblest thing you could have done to have lost any one of them. It may be that the success you have met in life far outweighs that which you sought.

But I do say this: Look at your defeats honestly and see what the cause was.

Learn something from every one of them, if it is only that you were right and are glad you failed.

other side. Serve with maitre d'hotel butter.

Frogs' legs Fricassee.—Joint the legs and place in a granite saucepan with a little butter; cover and cook until the butter commences to brown, then pour in a cup of hot water, cover again and stew twenty minutes. Season and pour on a cup of cream containing the beaten yolks of two eggs. As soon as it begins to boil thicken slightly with wet cornstarch. Serve with hot buttered toast.

Frogs' legs need nothing to enhance their perfect flavor, but if you are among those who must paint the jolly or refine your gold, try cooking them with mushrooms and serve them with Poulette sauce. Fry the legs and the mushrooms together in a little butter, place them on a hot dish and dress with the sauce, which is made of veal stock thickened with yolks of eggs and enriched with cream. It must not boil or it will curdle. Add the juice of half a lemon, a tablespoonful of parsley and a dash of nutmeg. It must be used as soon as made.

Frogs' Legs, Creole Style.—Boil them in flour and brown in a little hot butter. Dish and cover while you fry the peppers thus: Select sweet Spanish bell peppers, score them lengthwise with a sharp pointed knife through the red skin only, being careful not to cut into the white lining. Lay them for one minute in a hot oven, when the skin will shrivel slightly and can be pulled off in thin strips in the pan. Garnish the legs with this and pour the hot brown butter over all.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am nineteen and in love with a girl of twenty-five. I am as tall as my father and look full as old as my girl. She says she will marry me but my parents are against it.

She is a good girl, but they say I am too young to marry. Now must wait until I am twenty-one before I marry?

BOB.

You certainly must wait until you are twenty-one if you wish to marry without your parents' consent. Also, I think your parents are very wise, Bob. You should respect that wisdom.

The girl may be all right in every way, though I question her judgment in being willing to marry a lad of your age. A girl of twenty-five ought to have more sense than that, and should wish for a man nearer her own age.

However the sensible thing for you to do is to wait until you are twenty-one. Then, if you and the girl still think you love each other enough to marry, and you are able to support a wife, the marriage may be all right.

hence, while the girl in that time, will probably have found a more suitable match.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am fourteen years old and have two brothers one younger and one older. My mother is dead and I have to take care of the house. I do all the housework and cooking and washing and I never have any fun like other girls.

When I say anything to my father, that he ought to make my brothers help, he says housework isn't boy's work and I must do the best I can. I had to stop school after my mother died. Don't you think I ought to get some education, Mrs. Thompson?

Isn't there any way you can tell me so I don't have to stay here all the time and do all the work?

MARIETTA.

Your burdens are too heavy, little girl. Your father certainly ought to see to it that you are not overtaxed.

He would not be at all unmanly for your brothers to help you with the hardest work. Many splendid men have helped their wives with the housework, thinking it more digni-

GIFFORD PINCHOT ON BOY SCOUTS LESSONS

Says They Will be of Great Value in Preserving The Forests of This Country.

Gifford Pinchot, Chief Scout Forester of the Boy Scouts of America, has prepared for the Boy Scouts a statement showing how they may learn the age of a tree; how they may estimate the size of the tree ten, twenty or thirty years ago, and especially how to gain practical and valuable information in their trips through the woods.

In this statement Pinchot appeals to the Boy Scouts to co-operate with the foresters, saying that it is a duty which the boys owe to their country. "It is as important," he writes, "that you should study these things as that the foresters should do so. The foresters, being train men, will know how to make the best practical use of what they learn. But it is upon all of us that the responsibility will fall of carrying out what the foresters command, and nothing you can do to get an idea of what forestry means in practice, is going to help you to co-operate with the foresters. That will help the woods, and help your country."

"If you can get into the woods where cutting is going on, even if it is only of small stuff for firewood, I suggest that you do this: Count the rings of growth on the stump of a tree, first making sure what kind of tree it is. Count the rings from the center outwards. Each ring means a year in the life of the tree, and the whole number of rings means the age of the tree. Then measure the thickness of the tree across the stump. If the tree has not been worked up into logs or into firewood, you can easily measure its height by running a tape line or a piece of string, from the butt of the first log to the top of the crown, adding the height of the stump. If you make several of these 'stem analyses' on trees of different sizes and then compare the results, you will find out many interesting things about how that kind of tree grows; for example, that it may grow fastest in height when it is young, fastest in diameter when it is older, and that later on in life diameter growth falls off and height growth is very, very slow."

"But even a stem analysis of one tree teaches you a great deal. It tells you, not only how old was the tree when it reached the size at which it was cut, but also how old the tree was at all sizes since it was a little seedling, for every tree has its own life history written on its ring of growth. Suppose you have measured an Oak, and found it to be fourteen inches thick and seventy years old. All you need to do to find out how thick that Oak was when it was, say, thirty years old, is to measure out from the center the distance covered by the first thirty rings, multiply that distance by two and add an inch for the bark. The result you very closely follow the tree was forty years ago, long before you were born."

"While you are making the stem analysis, don't fail to study the woods in which the cutting goes on. How do they look? Will they grow trees again like those that have been cut or has the forest been destroyed by cutting? Is the brush piled so that it can be burned up, or are the big tops lopped so that they will rot quickly, or is all this trash strewn over the ground, where it would burn fiercely, and kill what trees are left standing? Have too many trees been cut, so that instead of a forest there are only a few scattered, scrubby trees left, or are there enough to shed seed to plant the land to forest again? Have the trees been felled carelessly, so as to injure other trees or crush down young growth, or have they been felled skillfully? Are the stumps cut close to the ground so as to waste no timber, or have they been cut high up in lazy-man's fashion? Have the logs all been taken out, or just the best ones, leaving a lot of wood lying on the ground?"

MANY ARE ENJOYING LAKES AT WAUPACA

Levi K. Alden Writes From Soldiers' Home Regarding Popular Summer Resort.

Beauties of the lakes in the vicinity of Waupaca are attracting many persons for the camping season according to Levi K. Alden of this city one of the veteran printers of this section who is now at the Soldiers' home. In a letter to the Gazette he says:

Wisconsin Veterans' Home, July 31, 1912.

To the Editor:—

With the Good Templars in their annual outing at Camp Cleghorn, the Jesuits of St. John's in camp on an island near here, the shores of the several lakes alive with summer visitors in their cottages, and the hotels full of guests, the Wisconsin Veterans' Home is certainly in the limelight. Among the Janesville people who have been here the past week were Charles Stevens, his sister, Mrs. Kelsey of 303 Jefferson avenue who visited at the cottage of their brother, John; Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Clarke and Miss Clara Carey.

Just now the woods are full of black and blueberries and the 'b' put in this time gathering them. Fishing is also good and the stories some of them tell would make even Isaac Walton blush. There are more gasoline launches on the lakes this season than ever before and as a consequence one can take a trip around the eleven beautiful lakes for the modest sum of 15 cents. It is surely a trip worth the price. The Home has ceased to be a charitable one for the soldier and his wife since the increase in pensions has become a fact and the soldiers are finding out that they cannot always get something for nothing. Under the present ruling the veteran who gets $25 per month has to pay a rebate of $10.50 per month for the privilege of living here. Of course that is cheap in one sense but it is a misnomer to call it a charitable home. The accommodations are as good as one could expect and while the table contains all that is necessary for human sustenance, it is far from being what one would reasonably expect for the price. The empty seats in the dining room are convincing proofs of the fact that many of the single men are taking advantage of the increase and are leaving the Home.

This is the only home in the country where a rebate is taken and unless the board of directors take some measure to rectify it there will be but very few single men here in the next six months.

The prospects for crops in this section are first class. Potatoes never promised better and corn is in fine condition. This is not a hay county and hardly one for home consumption is raised.

HUNDREDS ATTENDED PARK BAND CONCERT

First Appearance of Moose Band Draws Large Crowd—Rantlin' Or. Program Praised.

If any doubt existed as to the existence or extent of a popular demand for public open air concerts in Janesville they were dissipated by the attendance at the first public concert of the Moose Band in the east end of the Court House Park last night. Not less than a thousand people spent a part of the evening listening to the band and partaking of the refreshments that were served at numerous tables under the trees, brightly illuminated by strings of incandescent lights. Several hundred were in the park from the time the program began until its close.

The skillful manner in which the rendered its program called forth much favorable comment from those present, especially among those who knew that it had not been organized and in practice for more than three months. The band was liberal in its encores and played five numbers at the conclusion of the regular program.

Those who dispensed the refreshments of ice cream and cake were kept busy throughout the evening. The affair was so successful in every way that it is planned to hold another later in the month. The suggestion as made by several, and found wide approval that, the city continue to secure band concerts by granting the local bands the use of the park and refreshment concessions.

The program played last evening was as follows:

Our Glorious Nation Miller
Just Take Me Down To Wonder-land Allen
The Moose Flahli
Twilight Miller
On Wisconsin Purdy
Mammy's Shufflin' Dance Gideon
The Iron Clad Brown
The Serenade Hiser

MRS. PEPPER FOUND SANE BY THE JURY

Town of Center Woman Examined In Judge Sale's Court And Found In Sound Mental Condition.

Mrs. Alice P. Pepper, whose examination for sanity was heard in Judge Sale's court yesterday was found to be of sound mental condition by the jury late yesterday afternoon. The complaint was brought by James P. Pepper of the town of Center, husband of the woman under examination. Family dissensions were plainly the cause of the action yesterday and it was evident from the testimony given that incompatibility of temper existed between the two. Several of the witnesses after relating conversations they had had with Mrs. Pepper, when asked their opinion as to her sanity judging from the testimony they had given, stated they could by no means call her insane.

Yesterday's trial will be the last action in the county court until the regular September term of court, as Judge Sale will be absent during the month of August. The office will be open from one to two-thirty every afternoon during August in charge of Register in Probate, Ray W. Clarke.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

THE GREAT AMERICAN DESSERT.

(By Howard L. Rann).

Pie is a three-cornered slab of robust dessert, and when eaten in large quantities produces a feeling of satisfaction akin to pain.

This is particularly true of green apple pie, a deadly concoction which leaps upon the small boy with the utmost ferocity and causes him to writ in the despairing accents of the cholera infantum.

Pie is served in triangular form for the accommodation of people who believe that fingers were made before forks, or who prefer to attack it with a knife.

Some people have a strong aversion to pie in any form, and can seldom be induced to quench their thirst with it. Others will sit down at the breakfast table and subdue a large cream pie without exhibiting any remorse or other serious consequences whatever.

Since the canned-prune has taken the place of the succulent dried apple, the old-fashioned pie which would melt in your mouth if you waited long enough has become simply a heart-burning memory. Pies used to be made by mother out of butter crust and real fruit, and were adorned with ornamental fluting and hand-tooled monograms on the upper lid. The modern pie springs from the hard pill and the withered apricot, and is made in various stock patterns, ranging from the imitation quince to the counterfeit huckleberry. The crust of one of these pies can be bent like the top of a sardine can without affecting its hardy and intrepid nature in the slightest.

The most melancholy figure in the whole realm of culinary art is the deceptive mince pie, which is served with great abandon at Christmas time. Three or four of these pies, eaten in waltz time, will cause a man to dream of everything except paying his debts.

Another delicacy is the black raspberry pie, which abounds in clove seeds and clothes the teeth in dark funeral garb.

All of the most durable pie-eating contests have been made with the use of the cafeteria pie, which is rolled thinner than a lean man in a subway crush.

The Three Guardsmen

... By ...
ALEXANDRE DUMAS

Felton remained behind. He held a book in his hand. Milady reclined in an armchair near the chimney, beautiful, pale and resigned.

Felton approached her and said: "Lord de Winter, who is a Catholic as well as yourself, madame, has consented that you should read every day the ordinary of your mass, and here is a book which contains the ritual of it." Milady raised her head and looked more attentively at the officer. He was a Puritan. She had one of those sudden inspirations which people of genius alone have in great crises. "This reply, ready arranged, presented itself to her lips:

"If," said she, with an accent of disdain. "I, sir, my mass! Lord de Winter knows very well that I am not of his religion, and this is a snare he wishes to lay for me."

"And of what religion are you, then, madame?" asked Felton, astonished. "I will tell it," cried milady, with a feigned exultation, "on the day when I shall have suffered sufficiently for my faith! I am in the hands of mine enemies," continued she. "Well, let my God save me or let me perish for my God! That is the reply I beg you to make to Lord de Winter. And as to this book, you may carry it back and make use of it yourself."

Felton made no reply, took the book and retired pensively.

Lord de Winter came toward 5 o'clock in the evening.

"It appears," said the baron, "we have made a little apostasy."

"Explain yourself, my lord," replied the prisoner.

"Then you have no religion at all. I like that best," replied Lord de Winter, laughing.

"Oh, you need not avow your religious indifference, my lord! Your debaucheries and crimes would gain credit for it."

"What! You talk of debaucheries? Either I misunderstand you or you are pretty impudent!"

"You only speak thus because you know you are listened to, sir," coldly replied milady, "and you wish to interest your jallers and your hangmen against me."

"In eight days you will be where you ought to be, and my task will be completed," said De Winter.

"Infamous task! Impious task!" cried milady, with the exultation of a victim provoking the judge.

"Come, come, calm yourself, Mme. Puritan, or I'll remove you to a dungeon." And Lord de Winter retired.

Felton was behind the door and had not lost one word of this scene. Milady had guessed as much.

Silence was re-established, two hours passed away, milady's supper was brought in, and she was found deeply engaged in saying her prayers aloud, prayers which she had learned of an old servant of her second husband's, a most austere Puritan. Felton made a sign that she should not be disturbed.

Milady knew she might be watched, so she continued her prayers to the end. Then with her pure, harmonious and powerful voice, she began the psalm then in greatest favor with the Puritans:

Thou leavest thy servants, Lord,
To see if they be strong,
But soon thou dost afford
Thy hand to conduct them along.

But the day of our liberation
Will come, just and powerful Sir!
And if it cheat our expectation
To death and martyrdom we can still aspire.

This verse, into which the terrible enchantress threw her whole soul, completed the trouble which had seized the heart of the young officer. He opened the door quickly, and milady saw him appear, pale as usual, but with his eyes inflamed.

"Why do you sing thus and with such a voice?" said he.

"I crave your pardon, sir," said milady with mildness. "I forgot that my songs are out of place in this mansion."

"Yes, yes," said he; "you disturb you agitate the people who inhabit the castle."

his words, while milady was reading with her lynx's eyes the very depths of his heart.

"I will be silent then," said milady, casting down her eyes.

"No, no, madame," said Felton; "only do not sing so loudly, particularly at night."

And at these words Felton, feeling that he could not long maintain his severity toward his prisoner, rushed out of the room.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The Third Day of Captivity.

FELTON had fallen, but still more must be done. He must be made to speak in order that he might be spoken to, for milady very well knew that her greatest seduction was in her voice.

With Lord de Winter her plan of conduct was more easy. To remain silent, and dignified in his presence, from time to time by a contemptuous word to provoke him to threats and violence which would produce a contrast with her own indignation—such was her plan.

In the morning Felton came as usual, but milady allowed him to preside over all the preparations for the breakfast without addressing a word to him. At the moment he was about to retire she saw him make a powerful effort over himself. He sent back to his heart the words that were about to escape from his lips and went out.

Toward midday Lord de Winter came to her apartment. Milady was looking out at the window and pretended not to hear the door as it opened.

"I understand," said he, "you would like very well to be at liberty on that beach! Patience, patience! In four days' time the shore will be beneath your foot, the sea will be open to you."

Milady joined her hands and, raising her blue eyes toward heaven—

"Lord, Lord," said she, with an angelic meekness of gesture and tone, "pardon this man, as I myself pardon him!"

"Yes, pray accursed woman!" cried the baron. "Your prayer is so much the more generous from your being. I swear to you, in the power of a man who will never pardon you!"

At the moment he went out a piercing glance darted through the opening of the nearly closed door, and she perceived Felton, who drew quickly on one side to prevent being seen by her.

Then she threw herself upon her knees and began to pray.

The door opened gently. The beautiful supplicant pretended not to hear the noise, and, in a voice broken by tears she said:

"God of vengeance, God of goodness! Will you allow the frightful projects of this man to be accomplished?"

"I do not like to disturb those who pray, madame," said Felton seriously.

"Do not disturb yourself on my account, I beseech you. Repentance becomes the guilty."

"Guilty! I?" said milady. "Say I am condemned, sir, if you please, but you know that God, who loves martyrs, sometimes permits the innocent to be condemned."

"Were you a martyr," replied Felton, "the greater would be the necessity for prayer."

"Oh, you are a just man!" cried milady, throwing herself on her knees at his feet. "I can hold out no longer, for I fear I shall be wandering in strength in the moment at which I shall be forced to undergo the struggle and confess my faith. I only ask you one favor, and if you grant it me I will bless you in this world and in the next."

"Speak to the master, madame," said Felton; "happily I am neither charged with the power of pardoning nor punishing. If you have merited shame, madame, you must submit to it as an offering to God."

"When I speak of ignominy you think I speak of some punishment or other — of imprisonment or death. Would to heaven it were no more!"

"It is I who no longer understand you, madame."

"What! You are ignorant of Lord de Winter's designs upon me?"

"I am unacquainted with them."

"Why, then," cried milady with an incredible tone of truthfulness—"why, then, you are not his accomplice. You do not know that he destines me to disgrace?"

"You are deceived, madame," said Felton, blushing. "Lord de Winter is not capable of such a crime."

"Good!" said milady to herself. "Without knowing what it is he calls it crime!"

Then aloud:

"The friend of the infamous is capable of everything."

"You mean George Villiers?" said he did not enter.

call Duke of Buckingham," replied milady.

"The hand of the Lord is stretched over him," said Felton. "He will not escape the chastisement he deserves."

Felton did but express, with regard to the duke, the feeling of execration which all the English had vowed to the duke.

"Do you know him, then?" continued Felton.

"Oh, know him—yes, to my misfortune—to my eternal misfortune." And milady wrung her hands. "Sir," cried she, "be kind, be clement. Listen to my prayer. Give me a knife for a minute only, for mercy's, for pity's sake! I will restore it to you through the grating of the door."

"To kill yourself!" cried Felton, with terror.

Some one was heard in the corridor. Milady recognized the step of Lord de Winter.

Felton recognized it also and made a step toward the door. Milady sprang toward him.

"Oh, not a word," said she in a concentrated voice, "not a word of all that I have said to you to this man or I am lost, and it would be you—you!"

Felton gently pushed milady from him and left.

Lord de Winter passed before the door without stopping, and the sound of his footsteps soon died away in the distance.

"If he tells the baron," said she, "I am lost, for the baron, who knows very well that I shall not kill myself, will place me before him with a knife in my hand, and he will discover that all this despair is but played."

In the evening Lord de Winter accompanied the supper.

"Sir," said milady, "is your presence an indispensable accessory of my captivity? Could you not spare me the increase of tortures which your visits inflict upon me?"

"How, my dear sister?" said Lord de Winter. "Did not you inform me that you came to England solely for the pleasure of seeing me? I want to show you the kind of passport which I have drawn up and which will serve you henceforward as an order in the life I consent to leave to you."

Then, turning his eyes from milady to a paper which he held in his hand, he read:

"Order to conduct to — The name is blank," interrupted Lord de Winter. "If you have any preference you can point it out to me, and if it be not within a thousand leagues of London attention will be paid to your wishes. I will begin again then: 'Order to conduct to — the person named Charlotte Backson, branded by the justice of the kingdom of France, but liberated after chastisement. She is to dwell in this place, without ever going more than three leagues from it. In case of any attempt to escape the penalty of death is to be applied. She will receive 5 shillings per day for lodging and food.'"

"That order does not concern me," replied milady coldly, "since it bears another name than mine."

"A name! Have you a name, then?"

"I bear that of your brother," cried milady.

"Ay, but you are mistaken. My brother is only your second husband, and your first is still living. Tell me his name and I will put it in the place of the name of Charlotte Backson. Tomorrow this order will be signed by his hand and marked with his seal, and four and twenty hours afterward I will answer for its being carried into execution. Adieu, madame. That is all I had to say to you. Tomorrow I will come and announce to you the departure of my messenger."

Milady breathed again. She had still four days before her to complete the seduction of Felton.

A terrible idea, however, rushed into her mind. She thought that Lord de Winter would perhaps send Felton himself to get the order signed by the Duke of Buckingham. Nevertheless, one circumstance reassured her—Felton had not spoken.

Soon after she heard lighter steps than those of the sentinel, which came from the bottom of the corridor and stopped before her door.

"That is he," said she.

And she began the same religious chant which had so strongly excited Felton the evening before.

But, although her voice, sweet, full and sonorous, vibrated as harmoniously and as affectingly as ever, the door remained shut. It appeared, however, to milady that in one of the furtive glances she darted from time to time at the grating of the door she thought she saw the ardent eyes of the young man through the narrow opening. But he did not enter.

The next day, when Felton entered milady's apartments, he found her standing, mounted upon a chair, holding in her hands a rope made by means of torn cambric handkerchiefs.

He advanced slowly toward milady, who had sat down, and took an end of the murderous rope.

"What is this, madame?" he asked.

"That? Nothing," said milady, smiling with that painful expression which

"What's this, madame?" he asked coldly.

she knew so well how to give to her smile. "I amused myself with twisting that rope."

Over her head he perceived a gilt headed screw fixed in the wall for the purpose of hanging up clothes or arms.

"What were you doing standing in that chair?" asked he.

Value of Married Friendship.

Possibly there would be more married lovers if men and women alike realized that marriage should not be a bar to friendship with the opposite sex. It is next to impossible that a wife should find in her husband, or husband find in his wife, every qualification for mental friendship, yet this does not mean that the wife may not consider her husband the only man in the world worth being married to, or the husband does not consider his wife to be the one mate he wanted.

Silent English Crowds.

Silence is a great characteristic of an English crowd, it seems. The English people are generally very quiet. Once I went to Shepherd's Bush with my French friend. He said to me, "Can you believe that there are some ten thousand people in this ground? Just shut your eyes, you would feel you were standing in a desert!" Yes, he was only too true. In France or Japan they would make deafening noises.—Observations of a Japanese in England.

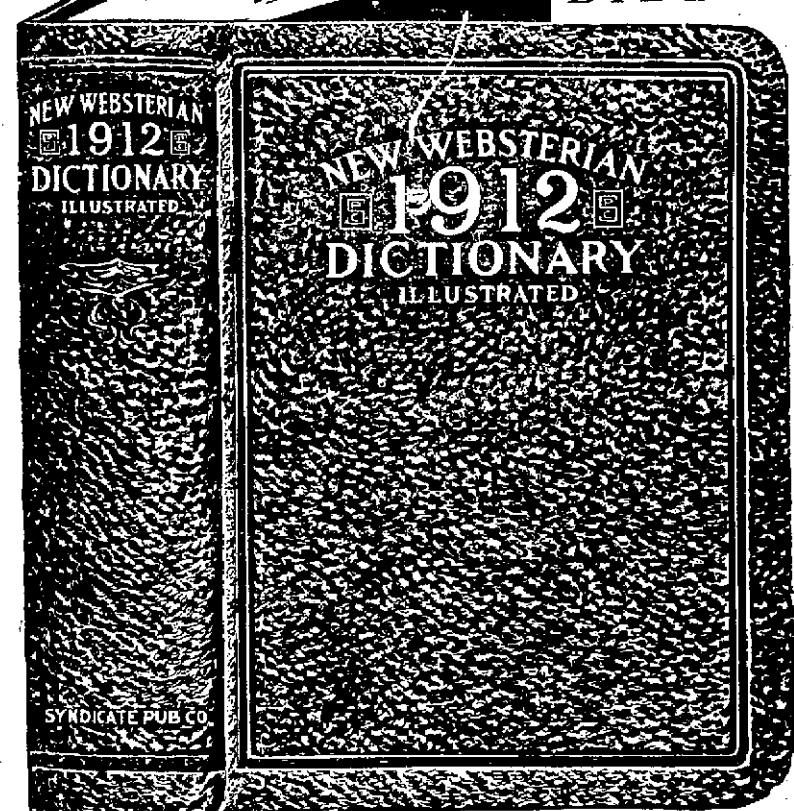

D. C. Bybee, teaming contractor living at 669 Keeling Court, Canton, Ill., is now well rid of a severe and annoying case of kidney trouble. His back pained and he was bothered with headaches and dizzy spells. "I took Foley Kidney Pills just as directed and in a few days I felt much better. My life and strength seemed to come back, my backache left me, I slept well, and I got up free from headache and dizzy spells. I am now all over my trouble and recommend Foley Kidney Pills to everyone. Badger Drug Co."

BOUND LIKE A BIBLE

Coming, Ohio, May 30, 1912.

Gentlemen:

Received your Dictionary yesterday afternoon, and became so interested in it that I sat up until 11:30 o'clock. This morning I showed it to my foreman and fellow employees, and all agree that it is a fine book.

I have taken a course in a Correspondence School and this book will be a great help explaining words that are new to me. It should be in every home, because it is the greatest book next to the Bible. Its low cost puts it within the reach of all, and I will tell all my friends to buy one. Much credit is due you for enabling your subscribers to secure it at so low a price. I would not take a $5 bill today for the Dictionary.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES E. SAMUELS,
